About Me

I am a full stack web developer well versed in the utilization and manipulation of a vast array of web technologies. Although I specialize mainly in the MERN stack I am comfortable learning and using other technologies and frameworks

My medical background provides me with a fresh perspective on precision and devotion. Being a medical doctor also provides me with the ability to empathize with the users needs and translate these into accessible and functional interfaces as user satisfaction are paramount in my philosophy. I can plan, design, build, launch, and maintain a website myself. I have done a couple as you can see below
